

MEDIA

I. POLICY STATEMENT:

The St. Johnsbury School District Board of School Directors (the board), which is ultimately responsible for the purchase of all educational materials in the St. Johnsbury School District, recognizes the students' right to read and obtain information from a wide and varied range of educational materials. The board also recognizes the right of teachers, media personnel and administrators to select goods and other materials for use in the district's schools. It is therefore the policy of this district that the following Media Selection Policy be employed in guiding media personnel in the selection of its educational materials.

The library-media program of the St. Johnsbury School District will provide the professional staff and students with a wide range of instructional materials at varying levels of difficulty, with diversity of appeal and the presentation of different points of view.

NOTE: The terms media, library materials, instructional materials or learning resources as they occur in this policy have the widest possible meaning. Instructional materials include books, supplementary reading and informational materials, charts, filmstrips, flashcards, games, globes, kits, maps, models, motion pictures, periodicals, regalia, slides, sound recordings, transparencies, video recordings, computer software, photographs, study prints and pamphlets.

II. RATIONALE:

Materials selected shall support and be consistent with the general educational goals of the school system as stated in their philosophy of leadership and will support those concepts stated in the American Association of School Librarians School Library Bill of Rights and in our district procedures (see Appendix).

DATE WARNED: JUNE 21, 2002
DATE APPROVED: JULY 15, 2002

HOME

SEARCH AASL

SITEMAP

AASL American Association of School Librarians

Access to Resources and Services in the School Library Media Program

An Interpretation of the Library Bill of Rights

The school library media program plays a unique role in promoting intellectual freedom. It serves as a point of voluntary access to information and ideas and as a learning laboratory for students as they acquire critical thinking and problem solving skills needed in a pluralistic society. Although the educational level and program of the school necessarily shapes the resources and services of a school library media program, the principles of the Library Bill of Rights apply equally to all libraries, including school library media programs.

School library media professionals assume a leadership role in promoting the principles of intellectual freedom within the school by providing resources and services that create and sustain an atmosphere of free inquiry. School library media professionals work closely with teachers to integrate instructional activities in classroom units designed to equip students to locate, evaluate, and use a broad range of ideas effectively. Through resources, programming, and educational processes, students and teachers experience the free and robust debate characteristic of a democratic society.

School library media professionals cooperate with other individuals in building collections of resources appropriate to the developmental and maturity levels of students. These collections provide resources which support the curriculum and are consistent with the philosophy, goals, and objectives of the school district. Resources in school library media collections represent diverse points of view on current as well as historical issues.

While English is, by history and tradition, the customary language of the United States, the languages in use in any given community may vary. Schools serving communities in which other languages are used make efforts to accommodate the needs of students for whom English is a second language. To support these efforts, and to ensure equal access to resources and services, the school library media program provides resources which reflect the linguistic pluralism of the community.

Members of the school community involved in the collection development process employ educational criteria to select resources unfettered by their personal, political, social, or religious views. Students and educators served by the school library media program have access to resources and services free of constraints resulting from personal, partisan, or doctrinal disapproval. School library media professionals resist efforts by individuals or groups to define what is appropriate for all students or teachers to read, view, hear, or access via electronic means.

Major barriers between students and resources include but are not limited to: imposing age or grade level restrictions on the use of resources, limiting the use of interlibrary loan and access to electronic information, charging fees for information in specific formats, requiring permission from parents or teachers, establishing restricted shelves or closed collections, and labeling. Policies, procedures, and rules related to the use of resources and services support free and open access to information.

The school board adopts policies that guarantee students access to a broad range of ideas. These include policies on collection development and procedures for the review of resources about which concerns have been raised. Such policies, developed by persons in the school community, provide for a timely and fair hearing and assure that procedures are applied equitably to all expressions of concern. School library media professionals implement district policies and procedures in the school.

Adopted July 2, 1986; amended January 10, 1990; July 12, 2000, by the ALA Council.

ISBN 0-8389-7053-2

American Association of School Librarians
a division of the American Library Association
50 East Huron Street
Chicago, IL 60611
1-800-545-2433 x4386

About AASL | Awards, Grants & Scholarships | Career Development & Continuing Education
Members Only | National Guidelines & Standards | Position Statements
Publications & Journals | Resource Guides | Technology | The AASL Community

HOME | SEARCH AASL | SITEMAP

American Association of School Librarians (AASL) is a division of the American Library Association

Copyright © 2000, 2001, 2002 American Library Association

Last Modified: Monday, 04-Dec-2000 11:47:00 CST

Links to non-ALA sites have been provided because these sites may have information of interest. The American Library Association and the American Association of School Librarians do not necessarily endorse the views expressed or the facts presented on these sites; and furthermore, ALA and AASL do not endorse any commercial products that may be advertised or available on these sites.

Library Bill of Rights

The American Library Association affirms that all libraries are forums for information and ideas, and that the following basic policies should guide their services.

- I. Books and other library resources should be provided for the interest, information, and enlightenment of all people of the community the library serves. Materials should not be excluded because of the origin, background, or views of those contributing to their creation.
- II. Libraries should provide materials and information presenting all points of view on current and historical issues. Materials should not be proscribed or removed because of partisan or doctrinal disapproval.
- III. Libraries should challenge censorship in the fulfillment of their responsibility to provide information and enlightenment.
- IV. Libraries should cooperate with all persons and groups concerned with resisting abridgment of free expression and free access to ideas.
- V. A person's right to use a library should not be denied or abridged because of origin, age, background, or views.
- VI. Libraries which make exhibit spaces and meeting rooms available to the public they serve should make such facilities available on an equitable basis, regardless of the beliefs or affiliations of individuals or groups requesting their use.

Adopted June 18, 1948.
Amended February 2, 1961, and January 23, 1980, inclusion of "age" reaffirmed January 23, 1996,
by the ALA Council.